解答例

[賛成]

In my opinion, the number of Japanese people who read electronic books will increase for the following two reasons. Firstly, people will get used to any new device in a short time. Some people complain that they are not at all satisfied with reading electronic books. However, it will not be long before they adapt to these new conveniences. Secondly, this new device makes it far easier for people to read any book they want to. If they want to buy a book, all they have to do is click a button on the screen. For these reasons, more Japanese will prefer to read electronic books. [100 語程度]

[反対]

I do not believe that more Japanese people will read electronic books for the following reasons. Firstly, many Japanese are well aware that reading electronic books is harmful to their eyes because too much exposure to blue light can damage them. Reading books made of paper is far better in this respect. Secondly, reading electronic books will not make us really satisfied with reading. We feel happy not simply because we follow words on every page, but because we can feel that we are reading through our own senses. That is why I do not think electronic books will become more common among Japanese people. [100 語程度]
